

VEEDON FLEECE

Press Release: Decorex 2009

27th – 30th September 2009 · The Royal Hospital, Chelsea
Stand J306

Veeton Fleece will be presenting a collection of five new designs at Decorex 2009. Approaching their second decade, Veeton Fleece has long been a best kept secret amongst architects and designers, working mostly through word of mouth and always on an individual bespoke basis for both residential and commercial interiors.

Veeton Fleece weave couture carpets. Rare muga, pashmina, silk, the unique veeton and best hand spun Tibetan wool are all utilised to create the best possible result. Each Veeton Fleece carpet is made on a one off design commission basis up to a maximum size of 20m by 8m, exclusively to client specification.

Dragon Crescent

A Bloomsbury inspired design of randomly spaced floral rosettes woven in four colours of silk, predominantly imperial yellow, vermilion red with soft tones of puce and grey. (Exhibited in VF silk)

Vicary

Resourced from our archive, this sophisticated design has the ability to create a subtle WOW factor to any interior, either contemporary or classical. Subtle tones of aqua, ivory and sand are floated across a soft Robin's egg blue field. (Exhibited in veeton)

Sensation

This is called Sensation as it lends a sensational yet subtle direction to any room in which it is placed. The loosely drawn waves and random bubbles create an open and spacious feel to its surroundings. This rendition is created with a sand coloured field in Veedon, shot through with design in aqua blue silk. (Exhibited in veedon and silk)

Damask

It is not surprising that we make so many large carpets to this majestic classical design. This year we are exhibiting a rich true magenta field with a striking old gold decoration; a palatial combination. (Exhibited in veedon and silk)

Peony

Gold dust and sky, a striking combination of colours for this skilfully reworked 14th Century design by Sabina Fay Braxton. (Exhibited in silk raised pile)
